

Carlos Fernandes

Carlos Fernandes is the lead faculty in tourism studies at the Polytechnic Institute of Viana do Castelo, Portugal. He obtained his B.A. at Syracuse University (USA), M.A. at Rutgers University (USA) and Ph.D. at Bournemouth University (UK). His interests include alternative tourism as a strategy for rural development, heritage and cultural tourism and tourism destination management. In the last few years, he has conducted research and/or consultancy within various special interest areas, including Tourism and Gastronomy, Cultural Tourism, and Religious Tourism and Pilgrimage. For the last five years, he has been the director of the Tourism Laboratory, where Carlos directed the operations of the lab, including the coordination of research projects with EU funding. He is course leader of the Licenciatura (B.A.) in Tourism Studies (UNWTO Tedqual certified). Carlos also cooperates in World Tourism Organisation (UNWTO) activities including “training the trainer” courses and the development of teaching manuals for countries in Africa (Angola and Zimbabwe) and supports training of entrepreneurship for women in Mozambique. He is an official Auditor of the UNWTO TedQual Certification, in which he audits tourism courses worldwide. Carlos has presented papers in national and international conferences and has a substantial number of publications in his area of interest.

Title of the communication:

“Deconstruction of local cuisine, culinary distinction of the “wild youth” and the implications for tourism”